- Region IX Joshua Loper: I went to LA Harbor College, which had a workshop that was based on expanding creativity of art. The workshop began by instructing us to build paper airplanes and then to launch them to see which paper airplane went farthest. I just rolled up a paper into a ball and won, but the purpose of this workshop was to make us think outside the box. Another portion of this event was instructing us to imagine and write a list on how the world would change if humans did not have thumbs. Aylin, Joshua, and Joann will be flying out next
